"BRAIN MATTERS"
A Glimpse into the Future!

Why is it that some children thrive while others do not? Is it a matter of genetics, IQ, socioeconomic background, or education?

Director, Carlota Nelson, in her ground-breaking documentary "Brain Matters," answers these questions in an enlightening globe-trotting journey about what truly helps children realize their full potential.

We have a local connection to this documentary too!

In April of 2017, the Suncoast Campaign for Grade-Level Reading worked with the film crew and Carlota Nelson when they came to our region to interview several early-learning professionals. The final film includes footage of those events.

The Florida Center for Early Childhood Education has partnered with SCGLR for five screenings of the documentary; one in Sarasota, Bradenton, Punta Gorda, and two in Arcadia. Each screening will be followed by a facilitated Q&A session and lunch.
Parents and families play the most powerful and influential role in their children's lives. As their first teachers, brain builders, advocates, and coaches, parents and families set the stage for success...that's why you are the secret sauce!

We hope you will participate in one of the upcoming screenings of "Brain Matters," so you can discover the one thing in common families have all around the world!
